Short description

The toolkit lays out the first iteration of the sport for protection approach. It aims to provide a framework for sport, development and humanitarian actors, that guide the design and implementation of protective and developmental sports initiatives for children and youth affected by displacement. It also outlines the essential components needed to provide a safe, protective and supportive environment, and to achieve positive social outcomes, including social inclusion, social cohesion and psychosocial wellbeing. Available in English, French, Spanish and Arabic.

This toolkit is available in a shorter version for implementing partners that can be obtained for free by reaching out to contact@olympicrefugefoundation.org
